

ABSTRACT

[0031] A method of self-administering property insurance coverage for protecting individuals from liability which may arise as the result of excess wear and tear and/or damage which may occur to a leased apartment during the lease term includes relieving tenants of providing up-front cash-based security deposits and providing property managers with a service product which will generate fees for the property manager as well as provide guarantees to lessors making use of the service product.